dained in 1995, he has served as a campus minister and pastor in Virginia and as director of church relations at St. Andrews Presbyterian College in North Carolina (2001-2004). Hinson-Hasty actively engages in dialogue, study and initiatives that foster relationships and leadership development in the church and academy including on his the blog, "A More Expansive View: Encounters with Presbyterians and our Seminaries." A graduate of Wake Forest University (BA-History), Louisville Seminary (M.Div.), and McCormick Theological Seminary
(D.Min), Hinson-Hasty is interested in leadership in a multicultural world, serves as Chair of the Forum for Theological Exploration (formerly the Fund for Theological Education), is a member of Lectio Jubilate, and is married to the Rev. Dr.
Elizabeth Hinson-Hasty. Elizabeth and Lee are parents of Garrison (14), Emme (8), and a year-old Cavalier King Charles Spaniel, Basci (Ba-chee).

ered dish luncheon in the fellowship hall. Please bring a covered dish enough for your family plus 3-4 more as SAU will be our guests. Fried chicken and tea will be provided.

FROM OUR PASTOR:

This time of year we begin to think of the notion of Stewardship. Actually, as Christians, we should think of Stewardship each day. Stewardship is about being grateful, and responsible stewards of the gifts we receive from God. The tradition of giving back to God and to the church comes from the Biblical practice of tithing, giving back a tenth of our earnings to God (Numbers 18:26).

In reading about Stewardship on the PCUSA.org website, I noticed a curious statistic about Presbyterians. Those who have the least tend to give the most.
Percentage-wise more people with incomes of less than $25,000 tithe (give 10 percent) than those with a greater income. The same is true of the way they give their time and talents to the church.

The PCUSA.org website notes that on average Presbyterians give 1.5 percent of their annual income to the church—an average of about $580 annually, which results in a total amount of $1.5 billion. If every Presbyterian tithed, together we would give $9.5 billion.

One basic reason most churches struggle with the idea of stewardship is that they think stewardship is only fund-raising. It is how you pay for the church's budget. Stewardship is what many churches do only one Sunday a year, usually in November (sound familiar?). When church leaders and pastors (including me) make stewardship a taboo subject, poor stewardship results.

Stewardship is not only contributing money to the church; it's also about contributing time and talents, and volunteering for ministry and mission. It's about reaching out to build relationships from a perspective of abundance instead of scarcity. Out of God's abundance, we give to support with our very lives what God is doing in our midst.

Stewardship is living out our lives with the belief that all we are and have is God's, entrusted with us to share. Stewardship includes vocational discernment. It includes care of creation. It includes spiritual formation of our children and young people.

Yes, part of stewardship is fundraising. But the starting point for the stewardship conversation is that we, the church, recognize that we need to share what God has given us. The starting point for stewardship is not the need and mission of the institution. The starting point for stewardship is not our mood, or our likes or dislikes. As people of faith, we are about generosity, as Christ was about generosity. We are about encouraging people to live with their money in a way that is rooted in our faith, and our understanding of God's abundance.

If we believe that the mission of the church is to "make disciples," we also believe that exciting things happen when we put a new emphasis on stewardship in its fullest dimension: our time, talent and treasures (financial resources).

Giving has always been a mark of Christian commitment and discipleship. The ways in which a believer uses God's gifts of material goods, personal abilities, and time should reflect a faithful response to God's self-giving in Jesus Christ and Christ's call to minister to and share with others in the world.

As a vibrant, exciting church, with many ministries going on in our community, may we make stewardship a spiritual matter this year. May stewardship be the way we live our daily commitment to Jesus Christ as our Lord. If we do, I think we will take care of the financial aspects of stewardship.

SHARING OUR FAITH, SECURING OUR FUTURE

The upcoming holiday season creates a special time to remember what we are most grateful for and for most of us, it is our faith, our family and our friends. And again, for most of us, these three cornerstones that make our living joyful at times, and bearable at others, intersect at Laurinburg Presbyterian Church. Our church is much more than a structure where we gather regularly, staffed with a few talented and dedicated individuals who minister and administer. LPC is the foundational catalyst where we gather with family; where we make, encourage and strengthen friendships; and where we nurture and grow our faith.

But it is also a structure with staff that need our love, our prayers, and our tangible support to remain the strong foundation that provides us that foundational home. So, over the next 3 weeks, your church leaders will be giving you your commitment material for our annual Stewardship Campaign. This will include the opportunities and challenges that come with being a member of this church family. Please continue to discuss and pray with your family the faithful and generous investment you will make to your church. We will collect all our pledges on Commitment Sunday, November 9.

Thank you,
Greg Wood
Stewardship Chair
